Taking My Beau to Meet the In-Laws

JUDE MCCUDDEN, GIRL FROM OZ

I have to admit, I'm a bit nervous. I feel like a teenager, taking a boyfriend home to meet the folks for the first time. That old stamp of family approval is ringing in my ears. My large Aussie/Irish family, with strong confident personalities and with the 'gift of the gab', can be slightly intimidating. One thing I notice when I speak to them on the phone, is how fast they talk. I've become accustomed to the slow gentle country drawl here and I know I'll have to ask them to slow down. Rationally, I know the best thing to do is to step away and let my Canadian mate show his true colours. As long as they don't ask him for a 'a tinnie' (a beer), or 'don't go the raw prawn with me mate' (don't argue or start a fight with me), he should be OK. But as we all know, who doesn't love a boy from the Prairies eh?

La Luz y La Verdad

"If ye fulfil the royal law according to scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well: but if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors. For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all. For he that said, Do not commit adultery, said also, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a transgressor of the law. So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty."

Some Gardening Tips and Tricks

as taken from the Planet Natural Research Centre

- Like vining vegetables, but don't have the room? Train your melons, squash, and cucumbers onto a vertical trellis or fence. Saves space and looks pretty too.
- Garden vegetables that become over-ripe are an easy target for some pests. Remove them as soon as possible to avoid detection.
- When planting a flower or vegetable transplant, deposit a handful of compost into each hole. Compost will provide transplants with an extra boost that lasts throughout the growing season.
- Diatomaceous earth makes an excellent organic insecticide – it is an abrasive white powder used to damage the cuticle, skin and joints of insects. It also makes an excellent slug barrier.
- Water your garden in the early morning to conserve moisture loss and to help avoid powdery mildew and other fungal diseases that are often spread by high humidity levels.
- Over watering is worse than under watering. It is easier to revive a dry plant than try to dry out drowned roots.
- Healthy soil means a thriving population of microbes, earthworms and other organisms. A soil that has "good tilth" will produce robust garden plants that are better able to resist pests and disease.
- When transplanting tomatoes, cover the stem with soil all the way up to the first set of leaves. This greatly encourages root growth, making a stronger, healthier plant.

Keeping Your Garden Healthy — Maintenance

Here are some tips to keep your garden healthy, green and growing to its fullest potential:

- Feed the soil and the soil feeds the plants. Healthy soil promotes healthy plants that are more capable of resisting insect and disease problems. Feed the soil with plenty of compost and well-aged manure.
- Control weeds. Weeds are a problem in and of themselves, but they also harbor insects and disease. If you weed regularly, particularly at the beginning of the growing season, it should be relatively easy to keep weeds at bay.
- Take out your dead. Get rid of rotting or dead vegetation such as leaves, pulled weeds and plant stalks. Dying vegetable matter can be a haven for pests.
- Disinfect your tools. Keep diseases out of your garden by routinely disinfecting your tools. This is doubly important if your tools come in contact with diseased plant parts.
- Stay cool. When heat strikes, provide shade to your plants to keep them from wilting. Cheesecloth makes great shade cover.
- Provide support. There are several benefits to using plant supports such as trellises, stakes, A-frames and tepees:
  - It increases the space in your garden. - Gives plants more exposure to light.
  - Circulates air. - Makes it easier to prune and harvest.
- Pick, pick pick. Harvest vegetables as soon as they are ripe and remove harvested plants. If they are disease-free, add them to the compost pile, or, if appropriate, re-work into the soil.
- Keep it clean. Remove and destroy the diseased parts of plants to protect your healthy ones. Find out how much of the plant you need to remove. Sometimes just taking off diseased leaves is sufficient. Depending on the infection, you may have to remove the entire plant.

Happy Gardening!!
